

Second Step Foundation Donates $10,000 to Edible Prairie Project - Summer Weekend Meals for Kids to Help Fight Hunger

MINNEAPOLIS, Minnesota, December 1, 2021 | Second Step Foundation believes that no one in America should be hungry.

Second Step Foundation donated $10,000 to Edible Prairie Project in Gillette, WY. This funding will continue to help Edible Prairie Project purchase food and other necessities. The contribution was part of Second Step Foundation's $270,000 commitment to help feed people in the communities where Interstate employees live and work.

"For the second year, the efforts of each and every employee of Interstate Companies, and their work each and every day, allowed the company to once again support the food based organizations in our communities to receive donations that will feed over 800,000 people," said Jim Williams, Second Step Foundation Co-Executive Director. "That is something everyone should take great pride in. Looks like Interstate's motto, Pride in Service, is alive and well!"

About Edible Prairie Project – Summer Weekend Meals for Kids

Edible Prairie Project believes children should not have to worry about when and where their next meal will come from when school ends for the summer. Each weekend during summer break, children will receive a kid-friendly, nutritious, and filling food bag that will include 2 breakfast items, 2 lunch items, 1 family-style dinner, 2 healthy snacks, and 1 fresh fruit or vegetable.

About Second Step Foundation

The Second Step Foundation was formed in 2014 by the family of Interstate CEO Travis Penrod as a registered not-for-profit that has supported deserving charities with financial grants each year.

In early 2020, the foundation board established new direction for the organization to tie it more closely to Interstate Companies, Inc. and the 27 communities in which it serves across 13 states. The foundation, believing that no one in America should be hungry, has intensified its focus on fighting hunger by supporting local food shelves and similar charities that help feed people.

The foundation's logo carries a tagline, "Fueled by Interstate Companies," which signifies that the ongoing success of Interstate Companies will help sustain the foundation. Employees in the local branches of each division nominate charities in their communities to be considered for a donation. Learn more at www.secondstepfoundation.org.
